

Taungurung, Yorta Yorta, Wiradjuri, and Palawa artist Glennys Briggs presents a deeply personal works exploring her enduring connection to land, culture, and history. Through painting, printmaking, sculpture, and possum skin cloak making, Briggs shares stories passed down through generations. The centrepiece of this exhibition, a possum skin cloak, represents the Murray River's significance as a life source for her people.

Raised on Cummeragunja Reserve, Glennys' art practice is a continuation of her family's oral traditions and cultural knowledge. With a background in Aboriginal Health and Welfare, her creative journey began over a decade ago, culminating in a Bachelor of Contemporary Indigenous Art at Griffith University. Her work, shaped by extensive research into historical archives and cultural histories, is a testament to the strength and survival of her people.

This powerful exhibition speaks to survival, resilience, and the deep spiritual ties between Country and community. It invites audiences to engage with truth-telling through art and gain a deeper understanding of Aboriginal stories, knowledge, and identity.
